NARRATIVE:

Just after 0230am on the morning of 4-23-17 (Sunday), the Burlington Police Department responded to a report of an attempted abduction on North Street near North Union Street in Burlington.

A 28 year old female Burlington resident reported that she was walking on North Street soon after leaving friends. She observed a male laying in wait by his parked vehicle on North Street by North Union Street as she walked past. The male assaulted her from behind and attempted to pull her into a light-colored compact car. The victim fought the attacker off and yelled loudly, trying to get the attention of a group walking nearby. The male fled in his vehicle, westbound on North Street.

The male suspect is described as being in his late 40's to early 50's with a medium build, grey hair, with no facial hair. His vehicle is described as a light-colored older-model compact car.

The Burlington Police Department is requesting anyone with information about the suspect, vehicle, or anyone who may have witnessed the assault, to contact the Department. The Burlington Police and Chittenden Unit for Special Investigations are investigating.
